

Archives of the American Field Service and AFS Intercultural Programs Use Policy

Depending on the project, the collections in the AFS Archives may be available for publication or display outside the Guidelines of Fair Use (17 U.S.C., Section 107) with the express written permission from the AFS Archives. Usage without prior payment of fees and the express written permission of the AFS Archives is strictly prohibited. Our fees are used to defray costs and to continue the development of the AFS Archives and our collections. The fees help support our efforts, as a non-profit organization, to preserve the material and make them accessible for educational and future use.

This permission is non-exclusive, and in giving permission to copy, quote from, or publish, the AFS Archives does not surrender its own right to publish such material or to grant others permission to do so.

Requests for reproductions of copyrighted images or documents will not be processed until you have obtained written clearance of such rights from the rights holder. Copyright, trademark, and rights ownership are varied depending upon each individual collection, and the researcher must determine these issues and assume full responsibility for fulfilling the usage terms connected with all archival material, as well as any other third party or the licensing of any additional rights.

In the event that this research becomes a source for publication, a credit line indicating the AFS Archives is required. AFS also requests a complimentary copy of the publication. If a copy is unavailable, please send us a bibliographical note.